

Tales of Spooks, Spirits and Trains

Kansas City, Mo. The time has come to talk of murder, injustice and ghosts that wander along the railroad tracks. And who better than The Mystery Train to turn it into a little murder-mystery fun! “The Legend of the Spooky Switchman”, by Philip blue owl Hooser, is the next scheduled stop in The Mystery Train’s season, running through November 1.

Starring (left to right) Hilary Kelman, Debra Glagola and Jen LaBruzzo, performances are on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 7 pm.

Murder mystery dinner theater is presented as a live interactive game, but not all dinner companions are who they seem: one of them may be an accomplice to murder – or even the murderer himself! So grab your spotlights and get in the line-up.

The Legend of the Spooky Switchman

Onboard a train nearing Dead Man’s Curve in 1958, the passengers have been gathered to answer for a past tragedy. Little do they know one of them is marked for murder! Will the killer’s secret be revealed? Will the Switchman keep them on track? Or is it a train wreck waiting to happen?

The evening begins with role-playing at 6:30 pm followed by a marvelous meal and a mystery-comedy show at 7 pm. Cost is $49 each on Thursdays and “First Fridays”; $59 each on following Fridays and Saturdays. Price includes dinner, show and gratuity. Cash bar is available.

Advance reservations are required and can be made by calling (816) 813-9654.

Join us at the HEREFORD HOUSE DOWNTOWN, located at 2 East 20th Street. The Mystery Train offers group rates and is also available for private parties.
